SALE NOW IN PROGRESS

The constant daily increase of our business during the past year has obliged us to do the buying for the next spring on an unusually large scale to meet the demands of the satisfied customers who patronize our store. It has become a serious problem for us to make room in our quarters for the coming spring stock, which will exceed for variety importance, and attractiveness all our previous efforts. In order to solve the problem, we will give an opportunity to the public to take advantage of all our stock at extremely low prices.

Thursday, January 27, 1916, we will open our great CLEARANCE SALE of Men's, Boys' and Children's Clothing, Furnishings, Shoes and Rubbers.

After a successful banner year of business, we will give the benefit to our customers to fill their wants at prices which we could not afford in the future, as the European war has had such effect on the advance of prices on the market that no control whatever can be established to-day on what high prices will be on goods next season. All our garments were extreme values at our regular prices. They are extraordinary values at present figures, and twelve months from now you'll appreciate that fact even better than at present. Take our advice and buy for next season, as well as for this. Our stock is so large that even now customers will have in front of them such assortment of prices and qualities to satisfy them in every respect. Our reputation stands as guarantee that this sale is a strict, bona-fide sale. Our prices are really marked down from the original values as it is represented in this advertisement. Money cheerfully refunded to the buyers not satisfied with their purchases.

A MYSTERIOUS CREAM PUFF KILLS WOONSOCKET MAN

Dies from Poison After Eating Viand from Package Coming from Unknown Sources.

Woonsocket, R. I., Jan. 28.—The death of Almond Vadeboncoeur, after eating a cream puff of mysterious origin, was the subject of police investigation yesterday. A physician who at first pronounced the case one of cholera morbus, later changed his diagnosis and stated that poisoning was indicated. A box containing three puffs was received through the mail by special delivery Wednesday by Henry Cassavant, a contracting carpenter. The address was in a handwriting apparently disguised. In the opinion of the authorities the handwriting was that of a woman. Cassavant ate two of the puffs and gave a third to Vadeboncoeur. The former was taken ill Wednesday night, but application by a physician of antidotes for arsenical poisoning brought him out of danger. Dr. Joseph Jettis, who attended Cassavant, reported the case to the medical examiner, Robert G. Reed, and the latter sent samples of the puffs to the state chemist for analysis.

WIDOW TELLS OF MURDER NIGHT

Mrs. Mohr Broke Down When Told Doctor Was Shot

SAYS ROOKS MADE ADVANCES TO HER

Nears End of Heart-rending Story of Blighted Romance—Fear She May Collapse

Providence, R. I., Jan. 28.—The recital of her marital experiences was continued yesterday by Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr as a witness in her own defense against the charge that she hired two men to murder her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr. Wednesday she told of the physician's attentions to other women and the abuse she received when she accused him of faithlessness.

Yesterday she explained her relations with the negroes, her alleged accomplices, which she said were innocent. She ascribed to her husband a dual personality—at his best a kind and generous husband; otherwise a drug-crazed wife-beater.

Through it all she loved him, she said, and remained firm in her faith that he would sometime restore her to her proper place in his affections. She denied that she wished him any harm; had ever threatened him; or failed to love him. At first she appeared to have herself well in hand but later wept frequently.

reconciliation with her husband after she left him, because she still loved him. Mrs. Mohr said the doctor brought home a bicycle for his son, Charles, and a watch for the girl, Virginia.

"Doctor Mohr said to me at that time: 'Elizabeth, I don't want to be on the outs with you on Christmas eve; let's make up; and I did. I had Christmas dinner with him the next day and I gave him a Christmas present.'

Mrs. Mohr stated that at the time she filed her suit for separate maintenance Doctor Mohr was earning $52,000 a year, but that she asked for an allowance of only $100 a month.

"Doctor Mohr was under the influence of drugs," asserted Mrs. Mohr, "and I thought if the divorce papers were served on him it might bring him to his senses."

"Did you have any talk with him about the divorce suit?" "Yes, sir, he had been unkind to me one afternoon and he later came back and said, 'I'm sorry, you're not deserving of that treatment.' She told him she was going to leave and he agreed to pay $50 a week for the board of Mrs. Mohr and the two children. The doctor then said: 'Good-bye, Elizabeth; good-bye, Charles.'"

Mrs. Mohr testified that she had discharged Helen Hann and Julia Duffy, two servants who testified against her. The witness stated that she signed over her property to the doctor as a result of his threats. "Did you ever intend to get an absolute divorce from him?" "No, sir, I would never have divorced my husband."

Mrs. Mohr said that the threatening letter she sent to Mr. Rooks, brother-in-law of Miss Emily Burger, the doctor's secretary in 1914, was for the sole purpose of "scaring Miss Burger away from my husband."

The witness admitted seeing the negro chauffeur, Heals, at times, as well as Brown and Spellman. They gave her information. She denied several visits and gifts of money to which the negroes testified.

"What Tuesday night was it that Brown called you and told of his discharge from the employ of the doctor?" she was asked.

"The night of the tragedy." "Where were you the evening of Aug. 31?"

"At my home. I retired about 10:20 p. m. Some time in the night someone rapped on my door. I and two trained nurses who lived in the house responded. It was an officer. He said: 'Mrs. Mohr, I'm sorry to bring you this news, but the doctor was shot on his way to Newport.' I almost collapsed."

Mrs. Mohr was now speaking in a trembling voice. She went to the hospital with her son, Charles, and the two nurses.

Mrs. Mohr said the matron at the hospital told her the doctor was unconscious, that his head was covered with blood and advised her not to go into his room.

"I went home and sat up all night," she said. "I got word of his condition every half hour."

"When did you first hear of the doctor's death?" "As soon as he passed away," replied Mrs. Mohr, with tears in her eyes and her voice filled with emotion.

"What did you do?" "I don't know what I did for 15 minutes—I was frantic." Her movements following the murder and her summons to the police station were described. Her attorney, Mr. Carroll, advised her not to talk to the police.

The witness asserted that she was denied the privilege of having her counsel present while the police were questioning her. She admitted talking to Constable Wallace on the way to the courthouse in Warren, but denied having said to him, "If some had gone through what I've gone through, they would have killed the doctor long ago."

She admitted saying that she felt sorry for "those boys," meaning the negroes.

"Mrs. Wallace said to me," she went on, "No one will believe these 'giggers.' He said, 'No one has any love for the doctor. Don't worry, you will be all right.'"

Mrs. Mohr denied that she told Miss Florence Ormsby or anyone else she was bitter toward the doctor.

"I told her," she said, "that I loved the doctor and loved no one else; that I never would divorce him and that some day he would return to me."

She denied having asked Miss Ormsby if she could find out whether the doctor had put his personal property in Miss Burger's name.

"I knew he hadn't done so," she added. Mrs. Mohr admitted telling Miss Ormsby she "was as bad as Miss Burger," but denied using threatening language.

"Did you tell Constable Wallace that you loved the doctor, that he was the father of your children and did Wallace say the doctor was a scoundrel?" "Yes."

Mrs. Mohr appealed to George Rooks to help her keep Miss Burger from her husband, but did not say she could hire a couple of thugs to kill the doctor and that Attorney Cushing said she would never serve a day. Neither did she tell Rooks she had prayed in church the doctor would be killed in his automobile. Mrs. Mohr denied that she told Rooks Miss Burger would never live to marry the doctor.

ITCHING ECZEMA COVERED ENTIRE BODY, RESINOL CURED
Could Not Sleep 8 Remedies had Failed. Resinol Stopped Itching Immediately.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 11, 1914.—"My entire body, even my eyelids, was completely covered with blisters as large as a pea. When one would burst water would come from it, and then it would turn into a very painful sore. The burning and itching were something terrible, and I COULD NOT SLEEP nor rest. I think I had one of the worst cases of eczema a human being ever had. I used eight different kinds of remedies without success. I then tried Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap and it stopped the itching IMMEDIATELY. I gradually noticed a change for the better. Now I am entirely cured, and am without a pimple or blemish on any part of my body."

(Signed) Edward F. McCullough, 249 River St., Mattapan. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap heal skin eruptions, clear away pimples, and form a most valuable household treatment for sores, burns, etc. Sold by all druggists.
